HAGUE.

THE Treaty of Commerce Navigation and Marine, made, concluded, and ſettled at Utrecht, the 11th of April 1713, between the Ambaſſadors and Plenipotentiaries of his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty on the one part, and the Ambaſſadors and Plenipotentiaries of the Lords the States-General of the united Provinces of the Netherlands, on the other Part.

THE Treaty of Peace which has been concluded this Day, between the moſt Chriſtian King and the Lords the States-General of the united Provinces, having put an End to all Cauſe of Diſcontent, which during ſome Years had altered the Affection which his Majeſty has always had for their Welfare and Proſperity, according to the Example of the Kings his Predeceſſors; and the ſaid Lords the States-General renewing likewiſe the ſame Paſſion, which they have formerly ſhewn for the Grandeur of France, and reſuming Sentiments of a ſincere Acknowledgment for the conſiderable Obligations which they have formerly received from it, his Majeſty would omit nothing that might confirm it, and the ſaid States-General deſiring no leſs to perpetuate it, have judged that there is no better and ſurer Means, than to eſtabliſh a free and intire Correſpondence between the Subjects on both Sides, and for this end to regulate their ſeveral Intereſts in Matter of Commerce, Navigation and Marine, by Laws and Agreements the moſt proper to prevent all Inconveniences which might weaken good Correſpondence, his ſaid Majeſty ſatisfying the Deſire of the ſaid States-General has ordered M. Nicholas Marquis d'Uxelles, Marſhal of France, Knight of the King's Orders, Lieutenant-General in the Government of Burgundy; M. Nicholas Menager, Knight of the Order of St. Michael, his Ambaſſadors extraordinary and Plenipotentiaries to the Aſſembly for the Negociation of Peace; and the ſaid Lords the States-General have ordered M. James de Randwick, Lord of Roſſem and Burggrave of the Empire and Judge of the Town of Nimeguen; William Buys, Counſellor Penſionary of the City of Amſterdam; Bruno vander Duſſen, antient Burgomaſter, Senator and Counſellor Penſionary of the Town of Gouda, Aſſeſſor in the Council of the Hemrades of Schieland, Dyckgraef of Crimpenerwaerd; Cornelius van Gheel Lord of Spanbroek, Bulkeſtein, and great Bailiff of the Franc and Town of Sluys, Surintendant of the Fiefs held of the Bourg of Brugges within the Juriſdiction of the State; Frederick Adrian Baron of Rheede, Lord of Renſwoude, Emmikhuyſen and Moerkerken, and Preſident of the Nobility of the Province of Utrecht; Sicco van Goſlinga, Grietman of Franequeradeel, Curator of the Univerſity of Franecker; Charles Frederick Count of Inhuyſen and Kniphuyſen, Lord of Vredewold, Depuries in their Aſſembly on the Part of the States of Gelderland, Holland and Weſt-Frieſland, Zealand, Utrecht, Friſeland and of the Town of Groninghen and the Ommelands, and their Ambaſſadors extraordinary and Plenipotentiaries, to confer and conclude by Virtue of their Powers reſpectively produced, of which a Copy is hereunto annexed, a Treaty of Commerce and Navigation in the Manner following.

I. THE Subjects of his Majeſty and of the Lords the States-General of the united Provinces of the Netherlands, ſhall enjoy the ſame Liberty in Matter of Commerce and Navigation, which they enjoyed at all times before this War throughout all the the Kingdoms, Territories and Provinces of the one and the other.

II. And therefore ſhall no more for the future exerciſe any kind of Hoſtilities nor Violences the one againſt the other, either on Sea or Land, or in Rivers, Roads, and Freſh Waters, under any Name or Pretext whatever; likewiſe the Subjects of his Majeſty ſhall not take any Commiſſions for arming private Ships, or Letters of Reprizal from the Princes and States Enemies of the ſaid Lords the States-General, much leſs give them Trouble or Damage of any kind, by Virtue of ſuch Commiſſions or Letters of Reprizal, nor go a Cruiſing with them, on pain of being chaſed and puniſhed as Pyrates; which ſhall be reciprocally obſerved by the Subjects of the united Provinces with regard to the Subjects of his Majeſty; and to this end, whenever and as often as either Side ſhall require, moſt expreſs and direct Prohibitions ſhall be publiſhed and renewed, in the Countries ſubject to his ſaid Majeſty and in the united Provinces, to make uſe in any Manner of ſuch Commiſſions or Letters of Reprizal, on the Penalty abovementioned, which ſhall be ſeverely executed on Offenders; beſides the intire Reſtitution, which they ſhall be bound to make to thoſe whom they have done any Damage to.

III. And the more to obviate all Inconveniences, which might happen from Prizes being taken by Inadvertence, or otherwiſe, and eſpecially in diſtant Parts, it is agreed and granted, that if any Prizes are taken by either Side in the Baltick Sea, or in the North Sea, from Ter-Neuſe in Norway to the End of the Channel in the Space of four Weeks, or from the End of the ſaid Channel to Cape St. Vincent in the Space of Six Weeks, and thence into the Mediterranean as far as the Line in the Space of Six Weeks, and beyond the Line in all other Parts of the World in the Space of eight Months, to be reckoned from the Publication of theſe Preſents, the ſaid Prizes and Damages on either Side, after the Term prefixed, ſhall be brought to Accompt, and whatever ſhall have been taken, ſhall be reſtored, with Compenſation for all Damages thence ariſing.

IV. All Letters of Marque and Reprizal which may have heretofore been granted, for what Cauſe ſoever, are declared null; and ſhall not hereafter be given out by either of the ſaid Allies, to the Prejudice of the Subjects of the other, except only in Caſe of a manifeſt Denial of Juſtice, which ſhall not be underſtood to be manifeſt, if the Petition of him who deſires the ſaid Reprizals be not communicated to the Miniſter who ſhall be on the Place on the Part of that State, againſt whoſe Subjects they are to be given out, to the end that within the Term of four Months, or ſooner if it can be, he may either inform himſelf of the contrary, or procure the due Performance of Juſtice.

V. The private Subjects of his Majeſty ſhall not be liable in their Perſons or Eſtates to an Action or Arreſt, for any thing that his Majeſty may owe; nor the private Subjects of the ſaid Lords the States-General for the publick Debts of the ſaid States.

VI. The Subjects and Inhabitants of the Countries under Obedience to his Majeſty, and to the ſaid Lords the States-General, ſhall live, converſe, and frequent one with the other, in all good Friendſhip and Correſpondence; and ſhall enjoy among them Liberty of Trade and Navigation in Europe, through all the Extent of the Dominions of the one and the other, in all Sorts of Merchandize and Goods, the Traffick and Tranſportation whereof is not prohibited generally and univerſally to all as well Subjects as Strangers, by the Laws and Ordinances of either State.

VII. And for this End, the Subjects of his Majeſty and thoſe of the ſaid Lords the States-General, may in all Freedom frequent, with their Goods and Ships, the Countries, Lands, Towns, Ports, Places, and Rivers of either State, to carry and ſell there to all Perſons without Diſtinction; to buy, traffick, and tranſport all ſorts of Merchandize whoſe Importation, Exportation, and Tranſportation ſhall not be prohibited to all the Subjects of his Majeſty and of the ſaid Lords the States-General; nor ſhall this reciprocal Liberty be prohibited or reſtrained, by any Privilege, Grant, or any Particular Conceſſion; nor ſhall it be allowable in the one or the other to grant or give to their Subjects Immunities, Benefices, Free Donations, or other Advantages, above thoſe of the other or to their Prejudice; nor ſhall the ſaid Subjects of either Side be obliged to pay higher, or other Duties, Rates, Gabels, or Impoſts whatſoever, on their Perſons, Goods, Commodities, Ships, or Freights, directly or indirectly, under whatever Name Title or Pretext, than thoſe which ſhall be paid by the proper and natural Subjects of either.

VIII. The Subjects of the States-General ſhall not likewiſe be treated otherwiſe or worſe in the Duties of Conſtably of Anchorage, of the Sol pariſis, and all other Rates and Impoſts by what Name ſoever called; either under the Title of foreign Duty or othewiſe, without any Reſervation or Exception, than his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's own Subjects, who in the Places where the ſaid Duties are levied are not Burghers.

IX. As to the Commerce from the Levant to France, and the twenty per Cent levied thereon, the Subjects of the States-General of the united Provinces ſhall likewiſe enjoy the ſame Liberty and Franchiſe as the Subjects of the moſt Chriſtian King; ſo that it ſhall be lawful for the ſaid Subjects of the States-General to carry Merchandize from the Levant to Marſeilles and other Places permitted in France, as well by their own Ships, as in French Veſſels; and in neither Caſe ſhall the Subjects of the ſaid States-General be liable to the ſaid twenty per Cent, unleſs in ſuch Caſes wherein the French are liable thereto, on carrying Merchandize in their own Shipping to Marſeilles or other Places permitted; and herein no Change ſhall be made to the prejudice of the Subjects of the ſaid States-General.

X. It ſhall be lawful for the Lords the States-General to carry, import, and vend in France and in the conquered Countries, freely and without any Hindrance Salt Herrings, without Diſtinction, and without being liable to re-package, and this notwithſtanding ſtanding all Edicts, Declarations, and Arreſts of Council contrary thereto, and namely thoſe of the 15th of July and 14th of September 1687, which prohibit the bringing or importing into the Ports of France or conquered Places, otherwiſe than in Veſſels, and ſalted with Salt de Brouage, and ordain that the ſaid Herrings ſhall not be brought into the Sea-Ports but in Veſſels in Barrels, 18 of which ſhall make 12 of packed Herrings, which Arreſts ſhall remain revoked and annulled.

XI. The Subjects of the one and the other Nation, ſhall be reciprocally diſpatched at the Cuſtom-Houſes or Offices, as well in France as in the Dominions of the States-General, equally and without any Diſtinction, aſſoon as it ſhall be poſſible, without any Hindrance or Delay whatſoever.

XII. The Ships of War of either Nation, ſhall always find the Roads, Rivers, Ports, and Harbours free and open for entring, going out, and lying at Anchor, as long as ſhall be neceſſary for them, without being ſearched; on Condition however to uſe this Liberty diſcreetly, and not to give any Ground for Jealouſy by a too long and contrived Stay, or otherwiſe, to the Governours of the ſaid Places and Ports, to whom the Captains of the ſaid Ships ſhall ſignify the Cauſe of their Arrival and Stay.

XIII. The Ships of War of his Majeſty and of the ſaid Lords the States-General and thoſe of their Subjects which ſhall be fitted out for War, may in all Liberty carry their Prizes, which they ſhall take from their Enemies, whitherſoever they pleaſe, without being obliged to any Duties, either to Admirals or Admiralties, or to any other; nor ſhall any of the ſaid Ships or of the ſaid Prizes entring the Harbours or Ports of his Majeſty or of the ſaid Lords the States-General, be ſtopped or ſeized; nor ſhall the Officers of the ſaid Places take Cognizance of the Validity of the ſaid Prizes, which may go out and be carried freely to the Places mentioned in the Commiſſions, which the Captains of the ſaid Ships of War ſhall be obliged to produce: And on the contrary no Refuge or Retreat into their Harbours or Ports ſhall be allowed to thoſe who ſhall take Prizes from the Subjects of his Majeſty or of the ſaid Lords the States-General; but having entred by Streſs of Weather or Danger of the Sea, they ſhall be diſmiſſed again aſſoon as poſſible.
